start Displaying a message to the user explaining the game and how to play and Instructions asking for an integer (calc) from the user.
Check if Number is Within Range (Checking if calc is greater than 100) no
yes
Calculating the exit location (exit_result) using the exit_calc function Placing the monster locations in the monsters.locations array using the put_monster function.
Placing the heart locations in the hearts.locations array using the put_heart function.
Displaying the initial locations of the monsters, hearts, and the exit.
Check for Duplicates in diffrent functions Displaying the locations of the monsters, hearts, and the exit after handling duplicates.
Calling the game function.
Displaying the grid and the current number of hearts Calculating the possible moves based on the player's current position.
Checking if there are any possible moves
no
yes
print a "stuck, you lost" message and end end Displaying the list of possible moves Inputting the next move from the user Checking if the entered move is valid.
yes
no
Updating the player's position on the grid.
Checking if the player's current position overlaps with a monster's location.
yes
no
decrease hearts and update the heart count Check if the number of hearts is 0 yes
no
print a "you died and lost" message and end
end
Check if Reached the Exit
no
yes print a "you won" message and end
end
Checking if the player's current position overlaps with a heart's location
no
yes
add hearts and update the heart count Adding the player's current position to the list of used indices no